

Gracie Pall

Gracie Pall is a South Carolina based graphic designer. She works in a variety of styles and mediums while mixing traditional methods with digital art. By the time she graduated from Gaffney High School in 2018, her work was already published in two children's books. Pall attended Spartanburg Methodist College where she founded and ran the SMC Art Club, she exhibited her collection Colors of the Soul in the AIDS Quilt art gallery and fundraiser, and her work was selected for both the 7th and 8th Annual Collegiate Invitational at the Spartanburg Downtown Public Library. While in school she ran the Spartanburg Methodist College Fine Arts Night virtual gallery where her Clown Collection was on display. Pall received her Associates in Fine Arts with Summa Cum Laude at Spartanburg Methodist College and will receive her Bachelor's in Studio Art with a Concentration in Digital Design at Converse University in 2022. After graduation, Pall plans to continue making art that crosses mediums and possibly further her education towards a master's degree.
