BIO

Angelica Fodor, born in 1996, was raised in Middlesboro, KY until her early middle school years when she moved to her current residence in Spartanburg, SC.

Encouraged to pursue her interest in art by her mother, she is currently pursuing a BFA in Studio Art with a minor in Arts Management and Art History at Converse College. Art was used as a therapeutic outlet for Angelica when she gained insecurities from body shaming during high school.

While studying for a BFA at Converse College, Angelica began speaking about societal views and conditioned behaviors towards the physical appearance of women. She has shown in several shows including the 5th Annual Collegiate Invitational Art Exhibition at the Spartanburg Public Library, Anderson Arts Center 41st Annual Juried Show in Anderson, SC, and Bon Marche Print Exhibition at the Ann Street Gallery in Newburgh, NY. Angelica Fodor will be exhibited in the Milliken Art Gallery for her senior exhibition in the spring of 2018.
